SHILLONG: The Directorate of School Education and Literacy, Government of Meghalaya in association with the National Informatics Centre, is organizing a 3-day workshop on e-Granthalaya Software for automation and networking of government libraries at Meghalaya Administrative Training Institute, here.

E-Granthalaya is an Integrated Library Management Software developed by NIC for automation and networking of government libraries. The current version is 4.0 which is Cloud Ready Application to facilitate web-based data entry with a Centralized Database.

It has a common application for libraries with multi-tenancy with single instance application connected with many databases.

E-Granthalaya is at present successfully running in 3200 libraries all over the country.

The e-Granthalaya software has been developed by a team of experts from software as well as Library and Information Science discipline. The software is useful for automation of in-house activities of libraries and to provide various online member services. The software is UNICODE Compliant, thus, it supports data entry in local languages.

The three-day workshop will include e-Granthalaya setup, Admin Module, Circulation Module, Acquisition/Catalog Module, Serials/Search Module, MS SQL Server Setup and Hands on sessions for the trainees.
