Updated July 14, 2014, 10:41 AM EST   ALL FEEDS

| Home | Capital | Nepal | World | Sports | Business | Variety | Opinion | Entertainment | Multimedia | Blogs | Special | Perspectives | Election 2070 |

Today's Edition   ePaper   THTMobile   Media Kit   SUBSCRIBE NEWSPAPER NEW   BOOK CLASSIFIED   Login   Register   Make THT My Home Page

Top Stories

WEATHER
Kathmandu, Nepal
[31.1°C] [22.0°C]
Change Location

Full News

e-Granthalaya at Nepal Bharat Library

Added At: 2014-07-13 9:42 PM   Last Updated At: 2014-07-13 9:42 PM

Save   E-mail   PRINT   A A

ShareThis   Share

Google +

THT

HNS

KATHMANDU: With an aim of improving the library and providing more facilities to its visitors, Nepal Bharat Library, Sundhara has installed e-Granthalaya — a library automation software. The software was inaugurated by Ambassador of India, Ranjit Rae during a programme organised at the library on July 13.

e-Granthalaya provides web interface to publish the library catalogue over Internet as well as Intranet. The software provides information of the availability of the books in the library. "It will be easy for our users to find out the books staying at their homes," expressed Rae. One can easily access to the information through nblibrary.ddns.net and the web link is also available in the Indian Embassy's website.

After launching e-Granthalaya, Rae shared, "We are extremely pleased to launch this e-Granthalaya and we hope that maximum number of readers can now be benefitted and use this opportunity to search for their desired books online and accordingly procure them from the library."

Besides the inauguration of the software, feedback and suggestions from the readers were also welcomed. The readers suggested for ample space of the library and comfortable chairs for its betterment.

" Click Here to read today's edition of The Himalayan Times, just as it appears in Print. "

Also Read

Related News